

CORNELY
HAND-STITCH EMBROIDERY MACHINE
PRODUCING IMITATION HAND EMBROIDERY.
MACHINE "F"

Manufactured by Anciens Etablissements
R. Cornely & Cie., Paris, France

This machine produces embroideries which have the exact appearance of Hand Embroidery. These embroideries can be obtained equally well with silk, cotton, metal threads, etc.

For this work, the material which is to be embroidered is mounted on one of the frames supplied with the machine; this frame is then shifted by hand under the needle in the required direction, in order to obtain the embroidery.

On account of its patented mechanism, by means of which after each stitch the needle remains above the cloth during a full revolution of the fly wheel, stitches can be drawn as long as by hand, even by using very coarse threads of any kind, which result can be obtained on no other machine.
