

CORNELY
LOCK-STITCH
EMBROIDERING, BRAIDING
AND BEADING MACHINE.
MACHINE "FD"

Manufactured by
 Anciens Etablissements
 R. Cornely & Cie.,
 Paris, France

This new embroidering, braiding and beading machine works with an oscillating needle and produces a great variety of different effects, such as single and double beading, single or double raised or flat braiding (the latter invisible), fancy cording single or double, beading and cording, beading and piping, beading and raised or flat braiding; it also sews three materials at one and the same time, such as two cords and beads in center, two braids and beads in center and many other combinations.

This machine is also equipped with an attachment which produces "Bedford Cord," or raised cord embroidering, by means of which a cord can be inserted under the material. This attachment works with two needles, and the cord is held in place by the shuttle thread.

Three different widths of "Bedford Cord" embroidery may be produced; the parts for the three different widths being supplied with the machine. In addition, this machine produces all the work of the Machine "FB."
