

Leslie K. Overstreet Curator, Natural History Rare Books

Leslie K. Overstreet came to the Smithsonian Institution Libraries in 1980. She worked for 8 years in the anthropology and zoology libraries in the National Museum of Natural History. Later, she moved to the Special Collections Department, where she served as the Reference Librarian from 1990 to 1997 in the Dibner Library for the History of Science & Technology. In October 1997, she was named Curator of Natural History Rare Books and now heads the Libraries' new rare book room, the Joseph F. Cullman 3rd Library of Natural History.

Overstreet holds a B.A. in English literature from Reed College in Portland, Oregon and has worked as a teacher and writer/editor. After joining the Libraries, she earned a M.L.S. degree in rare-books librarianship from the University of Maryland.
